TRANSLATING STRATEGY TO ACTION

Being clear about what is important and focusing on the right ‘change’ activity, is critical for translating an organisation’s strategy into action. Portfolios, programmes and projects are successful vehicles for delivering that change and improving business performance.

Research shows there is a high correlation between executive support and programme or project success. If you are serious about achieving your strategic goals, good portfolio, programme and project governance matters.

THE INTENSIVE DIFFERENCE

Our 2-hour governance intensives are expert-led, facilitated discussions that have been developed over many years of working with executive and senior management teams.

Our approach is to:

- Ask good questions whilst providing well researched options and models – resulting in a rich and focused conversation
- Challenge assumptions and thinking in order to encourage new ways of viewing old problems
- Ensure the thinking and discussion is immediately applicable within the organisation’s current context
- Identify when key decisions are made during the session in order to inform and guide those managing and implementing portfolio, programme or project functions

We are frequently invited back to further the discussion or to address issues that have arisen during the initial intensive. Some teams like to have a facilitated discussion annually to ensure they are continuing to evolve and develop their governance capability.
